African Cookboy (Paperback)

By David Dinwoodie Irving

Jacana Media (Pty) Ltd, South Africa, 2011. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Bonsela.. 206 x 135 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book. Dhlamini Shatterproof Bhekuzulu is a wily tsotsi geeza if there ever was one. Born into a world with two options for the black man: life as a doormat, or life as a tsotsi, Shatterproof chooses the one that absolves him from begging the nazi amaboere for every oxygen inhalation. Uncle Phuza Babalaza Mthembu and later The General kick-start Shatterproof's life as a tsotsi - a life his crafty nature ensures he is particularly adept at - a life that sees the amarands come rolling in, and that's how he likes it, mfowethu, thank you very much. The intricate networks of township crime are slowly unravelled as Shatterproof gives apartheid-era authority the finger and merrily exploits any loophole that catches his eye. Illegal business is the most profitable business, and the apartheid government has made sure that virtually everything is illegal for the black man. What a festive state of affairs for an ambitious cookboy such as himself. Despite his best intentions of avoiding violence at all costs, his mampara of a philandering brother Vilakazi, whose brain...
