Remarks of President Finley: I again welcome you as you leave your individual tasks to consider the framework of our educational structure and to determine in what respects, if any, it needs repair, extension or partition. The question receiving most consideration of educational engineers at present is that of the foundation and lower stories of the structure. This question is as to whether we should not build the lower part of it a story higher, thus expanding it for greater numbers, and make the high school stories three instead of four. This is not within the scope of the program set for our consideration, though it vitally affects the problem which we are to discuss and perhaps we may informally consider it before our session is over. Before we take up these items, I think we shall wish to direct Doctor Wheelock to send a greeting to Doctor Maxwell, who is not able to sit with us today. He said last summer that this was the one meeting of all which he hoped to attend. We shall also wish to send special greeting to Doctor Gunnison. You will also wish to express especial welcome to Doctor Tildsley, who is for the first time sitting in this board, and our congratulations upon his elevation to a superintendency. We cordially welcome also for the first time Professor Emens of Syracuse University and Professor Harter of Erasmus Hall.
